FOREWORD

In its continuing quest to improve the coordination among agencies that provide services to migrant and seasonal farmworkers and their families, the Office of Migrant Education of the U.S. Department of Education is providing the 1995 version of the Directory of Services for Migrant and Seasonal Farmworkers and Their Families.

Coordination is key to improving opportunities and services to migrants and their families. Agencies are collaborating in creative ways at the state and local levels. This directory is designed to promote further cooperation and a greater knowledge of the breadth and scope of programs and services for migrant families.

The Office of Elementary and Secondary Education's Office of Migrant Education encourages practitioners working with migrant farmworkers and their families to continue to work together to improve services to our migrants and to share the results of those efforts with each other. The Office of Migrant Education is actively seeking examples of collaborative efforts that can be replicated from locality to locality. It is through these efforts that we can integrate services to more effectively identify and assist migrant families.

We hope the publication of this Directory will assist the expansion of coordination activities to the benefit of migrant families throughout the nation.

Gerald Tirozzi
Acting Assistant Secretary for
Elementary and Secondary Education

Bayla White
Director
Office of Migrant Education

INTRODUCTION

Federal programs and national organizations that serve migrant farmworkers and their families share a common goal: to improve the effectiveness of programs in meeting the needs of migrants. Factors related to mobility, seasonal work patterns, and the lack of resources in the areas where migrants work and live make it difficult for migrant families to receive a continuous level of high quality services. Recognizing that the key to the successful delivery of services lies in better coordination among health, education, early childhood, housing, employment, environmental, community service, and legal agencies, the U.S. Department of Education has compiled this directory.

This publication is a revised version of the Directory, last published in the fall of 1992. It is the result of a cumulative effort of the programs represented within and is intended to provide information on the various services for migrants. It has been expanded to include new federal and non-federal programs, as well as several new directories of field offices of those programs. The Directory is written for informational purposes in non-technical terms and is not intended to provide legal guidance concerning statutes and regulations related to services for migrants.

The U.S. Department of Education plans to update and distribute this publication periodically. If you have any suggestions or would like to include additional information, please submit your recommendations to:
